Chapter 1 by Joy U

Prologue: The Wish of an Orphan

The peaceful sound of the noisy creek travels down the side of the street. It's unusual how the creek got there. Some say irrigation of all empires. Some say it was tears of Nature. Some say the kids built it. One way or another it was there. It brought calmness over everyone as they went about their days and conflict never emerged.

As the creek travels down the street it splits. One continues down the street of Chaos. The other one traveled to the woods. The woods.... are a different story. Once an old town, the woods were crumbling buildings surrounded by a jungle of weeds and vines. The buildings once a familiar faces, now gather dust, crumble and lay at the mercy of hungry greedy plants, thirsty for nutrients and re-population. The creek traveled through what was once the road of the old town. Walking down Elm Street- that was the street's name- the creek's width grew bigger and more circular until it spanned out into a lake. Bearing luscious fruits on trees as the variety spanned from everything from apples to plums to oranges that surrounded the lake. On the ground watermelons, strawberries and other fruits came intact. The colors would surely contrast with the crumbling building of Lucidity what the town was called.

Though a lake, there was another what looked like a pond at the bottom of the lake. A willow tree stood there as a tombstone and the house was the only one that remained.

Her mother- oh her mother-her beauty radiated as much as her personality. It was known that the beautiful woman married a man named Richard. Quite the handsome fellow. Like the mother he was heartbreakingly handsome. They both had stormy green eyes and dirty blonde hair. That facial beauty came with the perfectly sculpted body that made men and women's hormones go mad. The mother and father loved their daughter Cecilia and made sure she wasn't rotten but she wasn't maltreated either. They supported her with everything. Then the mother died when Ci was ten. Richard though saddened of his beauty's death saw the beauty in her daughter and treated her delicately but taught her everything he knew. Yes even all the arts of martial arts and uses of knives, swords and guns. Then he died when she was 15. Ci was born into the old town of Lucidity. And as the people started to moving out she stayed with her father. Both parents were buried under the willow tree where they met. Now 3 years later she celebrates their 20 year anniversary.

She wants them here. She cries and wails for her parents but it travels in thin air. Each anniversary is Ci's Birthday. So at each year she gets 1 new power which was why she was an outcast. Each Child in Lucidity-now Chaos- receives a new power for their birthday but one received the 'better ones' They shunned her and banished her to the lake, laughing maniacally. Ci was siren, mermaid, vampire, angel, succubus, and fairy. She also could control technology. Ci knew all these things were her parents powers. The last was the werewolf. There was a tattoo on the side of her hip with the beauty of the Moon Goddess shown. The Alpha Werewolf. So her wish- her wish was to have her family with her when she changed. That was her birthday wish.
